BORDEAUX (GIRONDE), situated on the Garonne, about 55 miles from the sea. It is the great seat of the wine trade of France. The population of the town, 261,678 inhabitants, makes it in point of population the fourth largest city of the Republic. The Languedoc Canal communicates with the Mediterranean. The port is large and there are extensive quays, and a considerable commerce is carried on. At Arcachon, near Bordeaux, the celebrated artificial cultivation of oysters is carried on.

Besides the Gironde there are seventeen departments in the south-west of France and in the neighbourhood of the Gironde which are wine producing districts, though the Gironde stands first among them, both as regards the quantity and quality of the wine produced. The total yield of wine in the Gironde during 1912 was 91,429,932 gallons, against 70,444,440 gallons during the preceding year.

The following shows the total shipments of Gironde wine from Bordeaux:—

The number of vessels entered during 1912 was 1,456 of 1,624,558 tons.

The codfish trade of Bordeaux amounts to about two-thirds of the entire codfish trade of France. It is carried on by the Syndicat du Commerce de la Morue. The quantity received during 1912 was 14,669 tons.

The exports in addition to wine consist of wood (pit props), hides, skins, potatoes, fruit and vegetables, preserved provisions, sardines, cocoa, oils &c.

The imports consist of wood for building purposes, coals, cotton, wool, skins and furs, feathers, hemp, tar, iron, steel, crockery, paper, colonial wares &c.

There are several weekly and fortnightly lines of British steamships running between this port and the United Kingdom, the most important being those from and to Liverpool, Bristol and London. The steamers of the Pacific Steam Navigation Company, which touch here on their outward and homeward voyages from and to Liverpool, only ascend the river as far as Pauillac, about 30 miles below Bordeaux.

There are also two important lines of steamships, one to New York, the other to New Orleans, and a new monthly line of steamers to South Africa, the Transvaal and Madagascar.

BOULOGNE - SUR - MER (PAS-DE-CALAIS). The population of this seaport and watering place was 52,946 (1911). The depth of water on the bar is 30 feet at spring tide and 19 feet at neap. In 1912 there entered Boulogne 3,143 vessels of 3,051,369 tons. The British ships which frequent this port consist of the regular passenger and merchandise vessels, running between Boulogne and London, Boulogne and Folkestone (the number of passengers carried by Boulogne-Folkestone route in 1912 was 408,482), Boulogne and Goole, Boulogne and Hull, Boulogne and Bristol, Boulogne and Plymouth, Boulogne and Cardiff. During five months of the summer a large number of excursionist packets come from Brighton, Hastings, Margate, Ramsgate, London, Folkestone &c. Also several Transatlantic services call at this port; these are: Rotterdam to New York, Amsterdam to the Argentine Republic, Hamburg to New York, Brazil and Argentine Republic and African coast, Bremen to New York and Argentine Republic, London to Argentine Republic and vice versâ.

The imports to this port consist principally of coal and coke, ice, wool, pig iron, iron ore, wood for building, jute, a considerable quantity of tissues of all kinds, wastepaper and many other goods. A considerable quantity of the imports are, however, goods in transit.

The exports consist principally of hay and straw, wines, potatoes, vegetables, fruit, cements &c. Boulogne occupies the first rank among French fishing ports. The industries of the district consist mainly of fishing and curing of fish and the manufacture of cement, boots and shoes, steel pens, pig iron and iron pipes. There are a large number of commission agents, all engaged in the transmission of goods in transit.

Extensive works for the erection of a deep-water harbour are in course of completion, which it is estimated will cost 32,000,000 francs. The dredging works allow sufficient depth of water to enable vessels of the largest size to enter at any period of the tide.

CALAIS (PAS - DE - CALAIS).—The population of this town, with the suburb of St. Pierre, now incorporated with it, is (1912) 72,322. The business of the port consists in the regular transport of mails, passengers (1912, 389,369) and general merchandise by steamers between here, London, Goole, Dover, Leith, and America and Australia, also large importation of Scandinavian timber, British coal and iron &c.

The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 2,046, of 995,197 tons.

Principal articles of import at the port of Calais are: — Beer, coals, ice, iron (ore, pig and sundry), ironware, jute, machinery, milk (condensed), petroleum (raw and refined), rags, tea, timber, tissues (cotton, tulle, lace, wool, carpets and other), vegetables (fibrous), wood (exotic), wood pulp, wool, yarns (flax and cotton) and yeast.

Principal articles of export at the port of Calais are:—Basket work, cables (submarine), champagne, chemical products, coals and patent fuel, corks, eggs, flowers (natural), fruits (fresh and candied), furniture and woodware, grain and flour, meat, metal goods (iron, copper &c.), milk (condensed), mineral waters, phosphates (natural), potash and carbonate, poultry, rags, seeds, sugar (native, raw and refined), tissues, vegetables, wines and liqueurs, wool (raw), yarn (linen, cotton and wool) and yeast.

MANUFACTURES.—The most important branch of manufacturing industry carried on at Calais Sud consists of the lace and tulle trade, the chief products being the Dentelle Bretonne, Point d'Alençon, Chantilly and Valenciennes laces. The value of the tulle and lace exported during 1912 was £2,326,236.

There is a considerable fishing and brewing industry, and the coal production of the Pas-de-Calais during 1912 was 29,838,015 tons.

CETTE, at the entrance of the Languedoc Canal and that from Cette to the Rhone, with a population of 33,049. It is connected with Montpellier by a railway of 17 miles. The imports are coal, grain, soft goods, fruit, foreign wine in large quantities, minerals, chemical products, mineral phosphates and petroleum, staves, timber and sulphur from Sicily.

Pitch is largely imported and sent up by rail to the coal mines to the north of Nîmes, to be mixed with the small coal and converted into patent fuel, now largely used on the railways and by the steam shipping in the Mediterranean.

The exports are chiefly salt and wine and fruit.

Here is a Chamber of Commerce and also a Spanish Chamber of Commerce.

CHERBOURG,

the great arsenal and military port of France, is situated at the mouth of the river Divette. It has a magnificent breakwater and a well-sheltered harbour. The population of the town is 43,837.

The great bulk of the trade of this port is with Great Britain.

The principal articles imported into Cherbourg are coals, timber and manure, but large quantities of merchandise of every description are sent viâ Cherbourg into France in consequence of the cheap and quick transit.

The exports from Cherbourg viâ Southampton consist largely of butter, eggs, flour, milk, cream, cheese and poultry, also fruit and vegetables, and macadamised stone generally.

The exports of vegetables mainly include potatoes, cauliflowers and broccoli, for which the climate and soil are so admirably adapted that two crops yearly can be raised.

A very considerable amount of business is done between this port and England, steamers belonging to the London and South Western Railway Co. running with goods nightly, and with passengers from Southampton to Cherbourg three times weekly. The Hamburg-American Steam Packet Co. viâ Southampton, to and from New York during the summer season, March 15th to November 15th, weekly. The North German Lloyd have agreed with the West Railway Co. to run special trains to Paris for the same service weekly (Southampton, New York). The steamers of the American line from New York to Southampton call at Cherbourg on the return voyage from New York. The steamers of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Co. from and to River Plate, Brazil, Spain and Portugal also call at this port every fortnight. A French line of steamers (Chargeurs Réunis) also runs from Havre and Cherbourg to Senegal and the Congo every alternate month. Service between Cherbourg, Guernsey and Alderney and between Cherbourg and Havre every Thursday.

Lloyd's Agent, Henri Buhot, rue Gambetta, 55

DUNKIRK (DUNKERQUE) (NORD) had a population in 1911 of 38,891. It is a town of considerable importance, derived from its position in the North Sea, and from the fact of its being the chief port of the department of the Nord, and the only French port in the North Sea. A network of canals and navigable rivers overspreads the country, connecting the port not only with the other principal towns of the department, but also with Belgium. The large manufactories in the department of the Nord find it more advantageous to receive their supplies of raw material through this port than any other, and the value of its import trade is far greater than its export.

There is regular steamer communication between London and the North of England, Leith and Dundee, also with Copenhagen, Riga, St. Petersburg, Amsterdam, Rotterdam, Spain, Algeria, Mediterranean, River Plate, Indo China and New York.

The total number of vessels entered during 1911 was 2,053, of 2,001,081 tons.

HAVRE (LE). The population is (March, 1911) 134,670.

Hâvre is the first market in the world for coffee, and the second in importance, after Liverpool, for cotton. It is also the principal port of transit for the importation of goods intended for consumption in Paris and in the interior of France, and it has a great natural advantage in its maritime situation as the first great Continental port for vessels arriving from across the Atlantic.

There entered in the foreign trade in 1912 2,618 steam vessels of 2,218,320 tons, of which 938 of 1,476,418 tons were British.

Vessels of the London and South Western railway from Southampton run regularly, also General Steam Navigation Co Le Hâvre to London.

Imports, 1912—raw cotton (nearly all from America), 281,8[illegible]2,700 kgs.; coffee (principally from Brazils), 110,947,100 kgs.; grain and flour, 216,369,900 kgs.; petroleum 97,789,400 kgs.; india rubber (raw), 11,042,400 kgs.; rice, 52,364,200 kgs.; cocoa, 45,127 600 kgs.; spirits, 320,820 gallons; wine, 376,436 gallons; tea, 923,600 kgs.; copper, 71,840,000 kgs.; coal, 820,127,000 kgs.; hides, 33,776,800 kgs.; pepper, 7,610,600 kgs.; sugar, 66,071,500 kgs.

LA ROCHELLE (CHARENTE INFÉRIEURE) is a maritime port. Population, 36,371. The total number of vessels entered at the ports of La Rochelle and La Pallice during 1912 was 512, of 770,205 tons.

There are three patent-fuel works.

La Rochelle imports coals (import 1912 was 483,333 metric tons. 422,374 tons from Great Britain and 60,959 tons from Germany), timber from Norway, Sweden, Finland and U.S.A., wood pulp from Norway and Sweden, and pyrites from Spain. It imports wine from Spain and Algeria. Two lines of steamers are now especially trading with the last-named country.

Salt codfish is imported from Iceland and Newfoundland.

La Rochelle exports brandy and wines (to all countries), superphosphates (to Portugal), and pyrites residue (to England).

During the last few years the maritime trade of La Rochelle has considerably increased, largely due to the opening of the new dock of La Pallice.

While the channel of La Rochelle is narrow and its outside dock has an average of 16½ feet of water at neap-tides, 20½ to 23 at spring-tides, the La Pallice dock, which is entered from the sea, has an average depth of 30 feet of water. It admits vessels of the largest size, which can enter at any state of the tide. There are two dry docks, one of which is 590 and the other 364 feet long.

Beyond the ordinary traffic, the dock at La Pallice has a considerable trade in nitrate from Chili.

Lloyd's Agent, Louis Michel, rue Chaudrier, 15.

LUZENAC (ARIÈGE), railway station, 32 kilomètres from Foix, 456 inhabitants.

Soc. Anon. des Talcs de Luzenac (talc works)

LYONS (RHÔNE), with a population in 1911 of 523,796 inhabitants, is the second largest and the chief manufacturing city of France. It is situated at the junction of the Saône and the Rhône at a distance of 468 kilomètres from Paris, on the Paris, Lyons and Mediterranean Railway. Lyons is the centre of the silk-growing region and the metropolis of the silk manufactures, in which it stands unrivalled. A large export business is done in these goods as well as in velvet, gold trimmings, embroidery and hats. Total value of silk goods made in Lyons during 1912 was £16,480,000. There are also extensive leather, iron, steel and chemical trades. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

MARSEILLES is the most important commercial port, not only in France, but in the Mediterranean. Population (1911) 550,500. It is the port of communication with Western Europe from all parts of the East; and it has largely availed itself of the great facilities afforded by steam navigation to increase its commercial operations. The commerce of Marseilles comprises the importation of almost every article of trade, and the exportation of all the natural and manufactured produce of France.

Here are brought cargoes of raw materials from India and the East, Africa, North and South America; and a considerable passenger and specie trade is carried on by the numerous lines of French packet boats running from this port.

The principal trade is carried on in cattle and sheep, grain, flour, rice, sugar, coffee, cocoa, pepper, oil seeds, olive oil and oil cake, dried vegetables and fruit, nuts, wool, leather, hides and skins, vegetable and mineral oils, wines and spirits, drugs and dye stuffs, tobacco, tallow and wax, soap, metals and coals, sulphur, salt, chemicals, bricks, tiles and cements.

Seed crushing and the production of oil, stearine, candles and soap is carried on on a very extensive scale.

This port is the head-quarters of the Messageries Maritimes.

The total imports during 1912 were valued at £79,050,000, and the exports at £73,950,000.

There is a Chamber of Commerce and a Tribunal de Commerce.

The total number of vessels that entered during 1912 was 8,246, of 9,682,321 tons, of which 765, of 2,315,077 tons, were British.

Lloyd's Agents, Savon frères & Co. rue de la Republique, 25.

NANTES (LOIRE INFÉRIEURE), situated about 34 miles from the entrance of the river Loire, has a population of 170,535. The navigation of the river is very good since the opening of the Canal Maritime, and vessels drawing up to 22 feet can come up to Nantes through the canal.

Shipbuilding is carried on, and nearly all the shipbuilding yards are in full activity.

This is the chief seat of the sardine industry of France. About 150,000 cases, containing various numbers of tin boxes of sardines, and about 150,000 cases of preserved vegetables are annually prepared.

Sugar refining and the manufacture of biscuits are of considerable importance here.

COMMERCE.—The following are the principal articles exported: Corn & flour, potatoes, vegetables, biscuits, sardines, preserved provisions, butter, wines & spirits, oil cake, building materials, iron ore, wrought iron, hardware, rails and machinery, chestnut hoops, refined sugar and other articles.

Principal articles imported: Sugar raw, foreign & colonial; cocoa, coffee; seeds, corn & flour; iron & steel, cast & ore & other metals; coals, timber; wine & spirits; chemicals, manures; pitch & tar, hardware, machinery & tools & other articles.

ROCHEFORT-SUR-MER (CHARENTE INFÉRIEURE), from Paris 470 kilomètres, on the State line, is a military and naval port, about 15 miles from the mouth of the river Charente; population 35,019; has extensive docks, with all necessary appliances for the discharging of vessels with dispatch and warehousing of goods. Vessels up to 24 feet can enter the docks at spring tides; neap tides about 20 feet. The new Dock No. 3 can admit vessels of deep draft any time. Has an active import trade in coal, coke, corn, iron and wood; exports are brandy, iron ore residues, pitwood and manure.
Lloyd's Agent, G. Williamson, at Tonnay Charente.

ROUEN is the principal town in the arrondissement of the same name in the department of the Seine Inférieure. Population (1911), 125,081. It is situated on the right bank of the Seine, 126 kilom. from Paris, and there is railway communication with Paris, Hâvre, Dieppe, Amiens, Orleans &c. The industries of the town are very considerable, the principal being cotton spinning and the manufacture of cotton goods of every kind, tapestries, printed ginghams, chintzes, handkerchiefs known as Rouenneries.

There are now four British lines of steamers running regularly between the United Kingdom and Rouen, viz.:—(1) J. & P. Hutchison, Glasgow to Rouen, every 10 days, and Dublin monthly; (2) Cie. Maritime de la Seine, London to Rouen & Paris, twice a week; (3) Thos. Wilson's Sons & Co. Lim. Hull to Rouen, every week; (4) Co-operative Wholesale Socy. Manchester to Rouen, every week; Rouen to Garston, every week; Swansea to Rouen, every week. The coal imported during 1912 was 2,257,287 tons, of which 2,031,465 tons was imported from the United Kingdom. The total number of vessels entered during 1912 was 2,252, of 1,927,435 tons.

Cie. des Produits Chimiques d'Alais et de la Camargue (aluminium manufacturers)
Société d'Electro-chimie (aluminium & chlorates manufacturers)
Société Electro-Métallurgique Française (aluminium manufacturers)

ST. NAZAIRE (LOIRE-INFÉRIEURE) has a population of 38,267. St. Nazaire is on the Orleans railway line, 60 kilom. from Nantes and 410 (447 by rail) from Paris. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

The principal imports consist of coals, timber, iron ore and wines. The principal exports consist of agricultural produce, iron ore, pitwood, fancy articles, liqueurs, wines and brandy.

The works of the "Société des Usines Métallurgiques de la Basse-Loire" at Trignac, near St. Nazaire, produce about 260,000 tons of manufactured iron and steel annually.

St. Nazaire is also one of the principal ship-building ports in France.

The Transatlantic Company's mail steamers, the steamers of the Cie. des Bateaux à Vapeur du Nord, the Cie. des Messageries Maritimes, the Sté. Navale de l'Ouest and of the Cie. Havraise Péninsulaire sail from this port. There are splendid docks.

Lloyd's Agent, A. Trillot, rue Alcide Benoist.

TOULON (VAR) is an important French naval port, and has one of the finest harbours in the Mediterranean, and a population (1911) of 104,582. The commercial port has been deepened from five to seven metres at lowest water, so that cargo-boats of the largest tonnage can now enter. A considerable coasting trade is carried on at this port in the import of wine, coal, iron and wheat for the use of the French navy. Many large steam ships are also hired by the French Government for transporting troops, stores, ammunition &c. to India and other colonies. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

TOURCOING (NORD), on the Northern railway line, 13 kilomètres from Lille, is a rising manufacturing town, with a population in 1912 of 82,644. The chief industries of the place are the combing, carding and spinning of woollen yarns, chiefly for the weaving mills of Roubaix and the district in general, where all kinds of textile goods are manufactured. There are some weaving mills and important dye works in the town and neighbourhood. Here is a Chamber of Commerce.

TROUVILLE - SUR - MER (CALVADOS), at the mouth of the Seine (population 6,137), is a seaport situated opposite Le Hâvre, from which it is 13 kiloms. distant. The entrance of the harbour is set nearly due north-west by south-east and is perfectly sheltered from north-east, east, south and west winds. The depth of water in the channel allows vessels and steamers to enter in ordinary neaps at 14 feet 6 inches, and springs at 17 to 18 feet. It is a fashionable watering-place and has beautiful sands, the population amounting in the summer to 40,000 (with Deauville). The principal articles of import consist of coal, timber and ice. A promenade pier has been constructed by an English company, and allows the steampackets from and to Hâvre to come alongside at all tides.

COLONIES

ALGERIA

SITUATED on the coast of the Mediterranean, opposite France, this dependency, only 28 hours' distance from Marseilles, is considered as an extension of France rather than a colony. Its coast line is about 200 leagues, with an almost equal land depth. The total area may be reckoned to contain about 343,000 square miles. Population (1911), 5,563,828, of which 795,522 are European. There are a large number of British subjects (principally Maltese) permanently resident in Algeria.

The industry consists in the cultivation of cereals, vines and tobacco, and the rearing of sheep, cattle and goats; vegetables and fruit are also extensively raised for the Paris market. The country produces cork, marbles and minerals, lead, copper, zinc, antimony and iron, also petroleum and phosphates.

Algeria is also being rapidly developed into one of the greatest wine-producing countries in the world. Immense tracts of land are being successfully planted with vines. Tobacco is a crop that is also largely cultivated, and cigars are exported.

Thirty-four kiloms. from Oran there are quarries of the finest marbles in the world.

Very extensive forests of cedar and cork oak exist in the mountainous regions in the departments of Algiers and Constantine.

Of great importance are the very extensive phosphate deposits of Djebel Dyr, about 15 kiloms. east of Tebessa, and which are said to be so extensive as to be capable of supplying the wants of the whole world for centuries.

The Export and Import trade of Algeria during 1912 amounted to francs 580,455,000.

ALGIERS (ALGER) has a population of 157,810 (or including the suburbs 162,326), and is a seaport and coaling station, and much frequented by vessels to take in water and provisions. Coaling is becoming more important every year. It is the central entrepôt for the trade in corn, red and white wines, oil, fodder, cattle, sheep, leather, wools, cotton goods, vegetable fibre, mineral ore, oranges and lemons; cultivation of vegetables for export, artichokes, green peas, early fruits. Here is a Chamber of Commerce, boulevard de France (Palais Consulaire); M. Louis Billiard, president. Here is also a Spanish Chamber of Commerce and a Belgian Chamber of Commerce.

FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA

FRENCH EQUATORIAL AFRICA (FRENCH CONGO) has an area of about 608,000 square miles, with a population of about 14,000,000. The French Congo is divided into four divisions, which form three colonies: Gaboon, capital Libreville; Middle Congo, capital Brazzaville; Ubangi-Shari-Chad, capital Fort-de-Possel. The Chad region for some purposes is also considered a colony. The capital and seat of Government is Brazzaville. The actual port is Matadi, and then per Belgian rail. Loango to Brazzaville is only a caravan route. A railway is in project from Loango to Brazzaville. The principal imports are metal goods, spirits and textiles, the latter coming for the greater part from the United Kingdom. The usual West African staples, rubber, palm oil, and, notably, a considerable amount of ivory, form the chief exports. Mahogany is the most important export of the Gaboon colony.

MADAGASCAR

MADAGASCAR is an island on the east coast of Africa, separated by the Mozambique channel from the mainland, from which it is distant at the nearest point about 240 miles. Area about 230,000 square miles.

The population of Madagascar on 1st June, 1911, was 3,199,465. Of this total, about 12,000 are Europeans. The capital is Antananarivo, situated near the centre of the island, at 1,400 mètres over the level of the sea, with a population of 67,200. Principal merchants of Tamatave have agencies at Antananarivo.

PORTS WITH CUSTOM HOUSES.—The ports in Madagascar now open to trade are 15 in number; they are Diégo-Suarez, Vohémar, Ste.-Marie, Mahanoró, Tamatave, Andevorante, Vatomandry, Mananjary, Farafangana and Fort Dauphin on the east coast and Nossi-Bé, Analalava, Majunga, Morondava and Tuléar on the west coast.

COMMERCE.—The imports consist principally of salt, petroleum oil, cotton goods of all descriptions, preserved meats and vegetables, jams, beer, wine, rum, liqueurs of all sorts, galvanized sheet iron, tin plates, wood, flour, tobacco, soap, haberdashery, hardware, ironmongery, coals, furniture, silks, tea, coffee and sugar of fine quality.

The principal exports are rubber, hides, rafia, cattle, rice, copal, wax, vanilla, gold and timber.

ROUTE.—By Messageries Maritimes steamer from Marseilles on 10th and 25th of each month; monthly steamer viâ Hâvre (agents, D. C. Thomas & Son, London).

The Export and Import Trade of Madagascar during 1912 amounted to Francs 109,879,150.

SOMALI COAST PROTECTORATE

THE Somali Coast Protectorate lies between British Somaliland and the Italian colony of Erithrea. The area is about 12,000 square miles, with a population of 50,000. The chief town, Djibouti, is connected with Aden by two weekly steamer services, one French, carried on by the Compagnie de l'Afrique Orientale, the other English, carried on by Messrs. Cowasjee Dinshaw & Brothers, of Aden, and also by various other shipping lines.

The trade for the year 1912 amounted to over 77,000,000 francs. Imports (including railway material), 32,300,000 francs. Exports, 19,200,000 francs. Re-exports by sea, 6,400,000 francs. Transit trade, 19,400,000 francs.

Principal articles of Import: Piece goods, bleached and unbleached, 11,000,000 francs; piece goods, printed &c. 1,250,000 francs.

Principal articles of Export: Hides and skins, 7,750,000 francs; wax, 1,250,000 francs; ivory, over 2,000,000 francs; coffee beans, nearly 7,000,000 francs.

DJIBOUTI, opposite Obock, in the Bay of Tadjourah, is the seat of government. It is a busy town of 15,000 inhabitants (French, 303; other Europeans, 320). Djibouti is connected via Obock with Perim to the cable system of the Eastern Telegraph Company. A telegraphic land line connects it with Addis-Abeba, the capital of Abyssinia. It is the starting point of the railway to Addis-Abeba, of which the section from Djibouti to Diré-Dawa, 310 kilometres, is open for traffic. The permanent way is completed from Diré-Dawa to l'Aouache, 207 kilomètres, and it is expected that this section will shortly be open for traffic. The construction from l'Aouache to Addis-Abeba, about 240 kilomètres, is being vigorously pushed on, and it is anticipated that the railway will reach the capital by the end of 1914. The products of Abyssinia still reach Djibouti partly by caravans to Diré-Dawa and hence by rail, and exclusively by caravans from the Aoussa country via Tadjourah. The road from Diré-Dawa to Harar was never completed, and the products from that section of the country are still transported by beasts of burden to Diré-Dawa. The manufactured goods &c. imported into the country follow naturally the same routes.

Djibouti is a free port; vessels calling there for whatever purpose have no dues of any kind to pay. Though as yet an open roadstead, the harbour of Djibouti is well lighted and buoyed. A scheme for the construction of a port provide with machinery &c. is under consideration of the French Colonial Department. Steamers calling at Djibouti can coal at the depôt of the Compagnie de l'Afrique Orientale. The Messageries Maritimes Co. have their own coal depôt; the French Government keeps also a large depôt of coal in this port. Water of good quality can be had in any quantity.

INDO-CHINA

FRENCH INDO-CHINA consists of the possession of Cochin China, the protectorates of Tonkin, Annam, Cambodia and Laos, and the leased territory of Kwang-Chow Wan. The population is estimated to be 16,500,000, and the area is about 300,000 square miles.

The total imports during 1919 were valued at Frs. 238,686,000, and the exports were valued at Frs. 290,547,000.

COCHIN-CHINA. — The area is about 20,000 square miles, and the population (1901) was 2,968,529, of whom 4,323 were Europeans. This is the most prosperous of all French colonies. The quantity of rice exported from Cochin-China in 1912 was 551,415 tons, valued at £2,986,896, the greater part of which goes to China and Europe, and the export duty levied on rice is one of the chief sources of revenue.

Saigon is the capital of Cochin-China, and it is also the principal port, 637 miles from Singapore and 915 miles from Hong Kong; the population of Saigon is estimated at 33,404, of whom about 2,500 are Europeans. All the commerce is carried on from this port, situated 40 miles from Cape St. James. The port of Saigon has been greatly improved during the last two years. Twenty-one dolphins have been erected on the right bank of the river and a quay of the length of 1,100 mètres has been constructed on the left bank, a little beyond the wharves of the Messageries Maritimes. The river is navigable for vessels of 30 feet draught.

Imports consist of English piece goods and other manufactures. French cotton goods are coming more and more into favour on account of bearing no duty.

The principal export is rice and paddy from Saigon; other export items are fish, pepper, silk, hides, cotton, coprah, cardamoms and maize.

The total number of vessels which entered during 1912 was 494 of 1,074,063 tons.

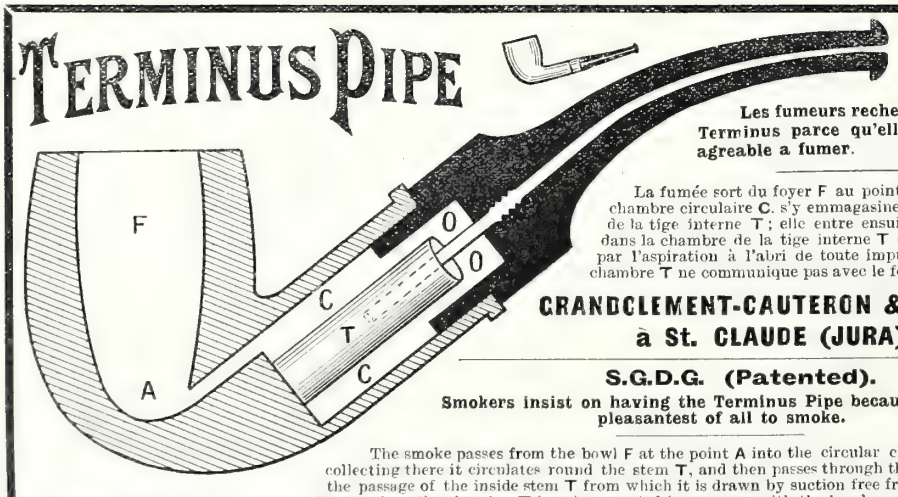
TERMINUS PIPE



BREVETÉE S.G.D.G.

Les fumeurs recherchent la Pipe Terminus parce qu'elle est la plus agreable a fumer.

La fumée sort du foyer F au point A, entre dans la chambre circulaire C. s'y emmagasine et circule autour de la tige interne T; elle entre ensuite par l'orifice O dans la chambre de la tige interne T où elle est puisee par l'aspiration à l'abri de toute impurcté—puisque la chambre T ne communique pas avec le foyer.

GRANDCLEMENT-CAUTERON & FILS à St. CLAUDE (JURA), FRANCE.

S.G.D.G. (Patented).

Smokers insist on having the Terminus Pipe because it is the pleasantest of all to smoke.

The smoke passes from the bowl F at the point A into the circular chamber C; after collecting there it circulates round the stem T, and then passes through the opening O into the passage of the inside stem T from which it is drawn by suction free from all impurities inasmuch as the chamber T is not connected in any way with the bowl.

Manufactured by GRANDCLEMENT-CAUTERON & FILS of St. CLAUDE (JURA), FRANCE.

GERMANY

THE Empire of Germany comprises a population of 61,720,529 (Dec. 1st, 1907).

The Empire consists of the following States, viz. :—The kingdoms of Prussia, Bavaria, Saxony and Wurtemburg; the Grand Duchies of Baden, Mecklenburg Schwerin, Hesse, Oldenburg, Saxe-Weimar and Mecklenburg Strelitz; the Duchies of Brunswick, Saxe Meiningen, Anhalt, Saxe Coburg Gotha and Saxe Altenburg; the Principalities of Waldeck, Lippe, Schwarzburg Rudolstadt, Schwarzburg Sondershausen, Reuss Schleiz, Schaumburg Lippe, Reuss Greiz; the Free Towns of Hamburg, Lübeck, Bremen, and the Reichsland of Alsace-Lorraine.

The Constitution of the Empire vests the supreme power in the Emperor, and the Government consists of the Federal Council or Bundesrath and the Diet or Reichstag, formed by members elected from each of the States. The various States of the Empire have each its separate government, making its own laws and controlling its own revenue and expenditure, except all financial matters appertaining to the Empire, such as the expenditure on the army, which has to be voted by the Reichstag.
